

Christians, Conservation & Creation Care

CAPERNRWAY FOCUS: CARING FOR CREATION

The natural environment is rarely out of the news in Australia these days. If it's not the potential extinction of the Koala and other native species, it's the mounting piles of waste we're producing, the loss of old growth forests, the pollution of our waterways, or the ongoing invasion of pest plants and animals. At this rate, the future for much of our country's natural environment appears bleak. It's a situation that concerns many Australians - but should Christians care? Christians claim to be God's people and we declare that this is God's earth, so how should we respond to environmental issues?
